

CULTURAL FOOD GUIDE FOR PANTRIES

Food pantries serve a variety of neighbors from many different backgrounds and cultures. It is important for pantries to understand the unique preferences and needs of their community members in order to provide the best possible service. This guide is intended to serve as a starting point for Indiana food pantries interested in offering more culturally responsive foods to their neighbors. This guide is not all-inclusive, so we encourage all food pantries to gather additional input directly from the families and individuals they serve for a deeper understanding of their community's unique needs. This can be accomplished through surveys, focus groups, or other methods.

Preferences and restrictions vary greatly by culture, but there are some key commonalities to keep in mind when serving immigrants or refugees from various regions:

- Offer fresh, whole foods vs. canned, processed, or packaged foods when possible
- Provide a variety of fresh fruits, vegetables, meats, and seafoods
- Rice and beans are staple ingredients in many cultures
 - White rice is generally preferred to brown rice
 - Dried beans are more widely accepted than canned beans
- Offer herbs, spices, cooking oils, and other cooking staples

Tips for sourcing culturally responsive foods:

- Request specific items in food drives
- Partner with international grocery stores
- Source fresh produce from local farmers, farmers markets, Society of St. Andrew, and food banks
- Partner with HATCH for Hunger for low-cost eggs
- Start small and offer what you can - providing even a few familiar or appropriate foods can free up money in neighbors' budgets to buy other preferred items at specialty stores

10 FOODS COMMONLY EATEN THROUGHOUT DIFFERENT CULTURES

The following pages provide some basic information on the dietary practices and preferred foods of specific countries or regions of the world. These represent some of the top countries/regions of origin for immigrants and refugees in Indiana, including:

- Myanmar (pg. 2)
- Eastern Europe and Russia (pg. 3)
- Haiti (pg. 4)
- Mexico (pg. 5)
- Middle East (pg. 6)
- Central and South Asia (pg. 7)
- Nigeria (pg. 8)
- Traditional heritage diets (pg. 9-12)

This guide was created with information and input from Gleaners Food Bank of Indiana, Indy Hunger Network, the Immigrant Welcome Center, Jewish Family Services, the Metropolitan School District of Washington County, Purdue Extension, and online resources from government agencies and other organizations.

- Major religions: Roman Catholicism, Protestantism, and Voodoo
- Immigration: Estimated at 10,000+ people, Haitian immigrants have become a growing part of the Indiana community in recent years. In total, there are about 1.1 million Haitian immigrants living in the US (2018)

CULTURAL CONSIDERATIONS

- Haitians are very friendly and welcoming. They often welcome guests to their homes with food, and refusing is impolite.
- Most Haitians place great importance on family life. Family comes first, above work or other responsibilities.
- Haitian children are often raised by the immediate family, extended family members, and supportive members of the community.
- Respect and obedience are characteristics that are valued by Haitian families. As a result, Haitian children tend to be well-behaved and respectful.

KEY CELEBRATIONS

- Independence Day - Haitians celebrate their country's independence from France on January 1st with fireworks and special foods.
- Ancestry Day is celebrated on January 2nd to commemorate the country's forefathers and other loved ones. Processions and family meals are customary.
- Carnival is a festival that happens just before the Catholic season of Lent in late February. It consists of 3 days of dancing, parades, musicians, and vibrant costumes. Many people give up meat, sweets, or other foods during Lent, so Carnival is a time to savor these treats.

STAPLE FOODS

- Fruits & Vegetables
 - Haiti's tropical Caribbean climate allows for fruits such as avocados, mangoes, pineapples, bananas, and plantains to grow in abundance and are a staple in the diet.
 - Vegetables such as pumpkin, potatoes, cabbage, and carrots are popular as well
 - Fresh produce is usually preferred over canned or frozen
- Protein
 - Dried beans (black, red, soy, chickpeas, and black-eyed peas) are a common protein source in the Haitian diet. The country's national dish is called Riz et Pois, or "Rice and Beans"
 - Goat, chicken, beef, eggs, and fresh or frozen, or dried fish are also common
- Starches
 - The average Haitian diet is largely based on starchy staples such as rice, corn, yams, and cornmeal
